

Authors' Biographies

Cristina Blumenkron is a member of the Mexican Academic Collective "Research for Peace" which focuses on psychosocial effects caused by organized crime related violence as well as peacebuilding in Mexico.

Costel Calin is an Assistant Professor of Political Science at Southern Connecticut State University. Dr. Calin's research focuses on the individual and domestic sources of foreign policy behavior. In the past, he served as a junior policy adviser and deputy national security adviser to the President of Romania.

Fausto Carbajal has been working in the Mexican public sector, initially in the Mexican Foreign Ministry as a chief adviser, and later in the Mexican Interior Secretariat.

Belén Garrido is a researcher at the Department of International Studies and Communication at FLACSO-Ecuador and lecturer-researcher at the Faculty of Humanities of the Pontificia Universidad Católica of Ecuador.

Michelle I. Gawerc is an Assistant Professor of Sociology and Global Studies at Loyola University Maryland. Her research interests include the sociology of peace, war, and social conflict, social movements, and organization studies. She is the author of Prefiguring Peace: Israeli-Palestinian Peacebuilding Partnerships (2012). Her research has also been published in numerous journals peace and conflict studies, Middle Eastern and international affairs.

Anne J. Hacker is a Faculty member of the School of Public Policy and Administration at Walden University. Dr. Hacker teaches ethics, foundational principles of public administration, and policy analysis. Her research specialization involves using qualitative methods as applied to policy analysis, organizational development, and community sustainability.

Annette Idler is a researcher at the Department of International Studies and Communication of FLACSO-Ecuador, a tutor at the University of Oxford and a visiting research associate at the Latin American Centre of the University of Oxford. She is also a research associate at the Centre on Conflict, Development and Peacebuilding of The Graduate Institute Geneva.

Mauricio Meschoulam is an Associate Professor in the International Relations Department of Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City. His most recent publications have focused on such topics as deconstructing discourse about the Arab Spring and organized criminal violence in Mexico.

Cécile Mouly is a lecturer-researcher at the Department of International Studies and Communication of Facultad Latinoamericana de Ciencias Sociales (FLACSO)-Ecuador.

Brandon Prins is a Professor of Political Science at the University of Tennessee-Knoxville and Global Security Fellow at the Howard H. Baker, Jr. Center for Public Policy. Professor Prins' research focuses on the causes and consequences of political violence within and between nation-states. Much of his work has examined how domestic political institutions influence leader decisions to use military force, particularly in the United States. His research has been published in International Studies Quarterly, Journal of Conflict Resolution, Journal of Peace Research, and the British Journal of Political Science.

Talia Raich is a member of the Mexican Academic Collective “Research for Peace.”

Carolina de Benito is a member of the Mexican Academic Collective “Research for Peace.”