

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Juichiro Tanabe is Associate Professor of Kumamoto University, Japan. His research focuses on religion, spirituality and conflict resolution. He has published articles on ‘Buddhism and Conflict Transformation’ and ‘Buddhism and Non-Violent World’ in various academic journals.

Michaeleen Kelly is an Emerita Professor of Philosophy at Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Her publications on such topics as the right to asylum, the state and evil have appeared in the Journal for Humanitarian Assistance and the Journal of Social Philosophy. Her poetry has appeared in Blue Collar Review, Melancholy Hyperbole, and Main Street Rag Anthologies. Professor Kelly’s area of specialization is human rights.

Linus Nnabuike Malu worked for several years as a Legal Practitioner and as the Project Coordinator of Pan African Strategic and Policy Research Group. Dr. Malu has been recently researching the impact of the International Criminal Court on the peace processes in Kenya, Uganda and Côte d’ Ivoire.

Oya Dursun-Ozkanca is Associate Professor of Political Science at Elizabethtown College, USA. Her research interests include transatlantic relations, Turkish foreign policy, international organizations, peacebuilding, security sector reform, and EU foreign and security policy.