

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Mauricio Meschoulam is Associate Professor of International Relations, Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City. Dr. Meschoulam specializes in terrorism and peacebuilding. He is a founding member of the Mexico Research Center for Peace (CIPMEX, A.C.), which focuses on the psychosocial effects of organized violence as well as peacebuilding in Mexico. Professor Meschoulam has led a number of research projects related to violence and peace in Mexico. His most recent publications also cover the analysis of the Syrian conflict as well as the emergence of ISIS, its media and psychological impacts.

Carolina de Benito's research has focused on political violence in the Middle East. She has been a member of CIPMEX since 2013.

Cristina Blumenkron is affiliated with the International Relations program at Universidad Iberoamericana and is also a CIPMEX member. She is currently involved in the Habesha Project, a Mexican-led humanitarian initiative aimed at promoting solidarity with people in Syria.

Tania Naanous is engaged in research on security, gender equality, and political communication as a member of CIPMEX. She has written about topics such as youth engagement in a globalized world.

Andrea Muhech is a CIPMEX research group member.

Alexa Ramírez's areas of interest as a CIPMEX member encompass environmental protection.

Sofía Quintanilla has worked for the National Commission for the Knowledge and Use of Biodiversity (CONABIO).

Dr. Yonghong Tong is an Assistant Professor of Computer and Information Sciences at Niagara University. His teaching and research areas include mobile/wearable/Web application, information technology use in education, geographic information systems (GIS) research, and data visualization.

Michael Alaimo is affiliated with Niagara University's Leadership and Public Policy PhD program. His research interests include the typologies of the most active terrorist organizations from around the world, policing strategies (e.g., community policing), street gangs, and collective violence.